GENERAL.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General),—dated 6th November 1888.

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPER:—

Letter No. 718, dated 13th June 1888, from the Senior Surgeon, submitting Annual Report of the Chemical Examiner for the year 1887.

No. 5164-73—CIR. 156, DATED 6TH NOVEMBER 1888.

REVIEW THEREON.—In previous years, the results of the Chemical Examinations were mentioned and noticed in the General Report of the Medical Department; for the year 1886-87 a separate report has been submitted; this may continue. The officer in charge is Dr. Benson, the resident Surgeon at Mysore, who is assisted by an experienced Hospital Assistant, of whom Dr. Benson says that he "has now been "at this work for several years, has picked up a very fair amount of knowledge in "Practical Chemistry, and is of great help". The annual cost of the examination is Rs. 1,243-15-0, of which—

The Establishment cost is	..	Rs.	1,200	0 0
Chemicals and Apparatus	..	,,	43	15 0
	Total Rs.....		1,243	15 0

2. The examinations are chiefly in aid of the Criminal administration of the State—in the detection of poisons in alleged cases of poisoning, and in the examination of blood stains. Other miscellaneous work of water and liquor analysis, &c., is nothing to speak of.

3. The report gives figures for the five years 1883 to 1887 and it is gratifying to note that in the year under review there is a material fall in the number of suspected cases, 42 against an average of nearly 63 in the previous four years. Of the 42 cases suspected, only 16 cases were returned as genuine cases of poisoning (15 of arsenic and 1 of datura) which is less than the figure 20 representing the average of the previous 4 years.

4. There were eleven examinations of blood stains.

5. The work of the Department cannot, as observed by Dr. Benson, be measured with reference to the number of cases, but the number of articles sent up for examinations in connection with these cases, and the Dewan concurs in the opinion that there is a fair amount of responsible work in the year to get through.

6. The report brings to notice that in almost all the cases of poisoning, the stuff used is arsenic administered, as seen in the individual cases narrated by Dr. Benson, in food and drink, that this poison is easily bought from almost every bazaar, and there is no restriction whatever against its indiscriminate sale. The Senior Surgeon proposes the adoption of a few stringent rules prescribing, among other things, registers of sales and stock to be kept by the vendors. He is requested to submit for the consideration of Government a draft of such rules in consultation with the District Magistrate and Inspector General of Police. He notes that in Madras no such rules exist, and the proposed rules for Mysore would not, under the circumstance, check the existing evil much, if men might get what they want in the neighbouring British Taluks, without the least difficulty.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Senior Surgeon to the Government of Mysore.
The Inspector General of Police.
The District Magistrates.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General),—dated 12th November 1888.

No. 5300-10—Cir. 159, dated 12th November 1888.

Order.—Heads of Departments and Deputy Commissioners are requested not to send any Printing work connected with their Departments to the Press in the Central Jail, Bangalore, but to the Superintendent, Government Printing Press, Bangalore.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Deputy Commissioners of Districts.
The Registrar, Chief Court.
The Secretary, Legislative Department.
The Secretary, Educational Department.
All other Heads of Departments.

No. 5311-20—Cir. 160, dated 12th November 1888.

Order.—The question of the responsibility of the Public Works Department in regard to works purely Muzarayi and Municipal has been under the consideration of Government for sometime ; it is necessary that this should be defined as clearly as possible. The District Revenue authorities, who are the directly responsible heads of both these Departments, should apply for the services of Engineering officers only in those exceptionally few cases in which professional advice and skill may be considered useful ; frequent demands for their services are uncalled for, the Muzarayi and Municipal works being often of a trivial nature, such as ordinary repairs to chattrams, construction of musafarkhanas, bandy-stands, drains, &c., capable of being undertaken and finished with fair success by the private Mestris to be found in almost all Municipal Stations and Taluk Head-quarters.

2. The time of the Public Works Department owing to heavy (and growing heavier) budget allotments cannot be conveniently spared for other than its legitimate works.

3. Under such circumstances, the Government desires that Deputy Commissioners will, in future as far as possible, minimize their demand on the time of the Public Works Officers, at the same time the Government trust that when special works require their aid and the aid is applied for, it will be given readily in the interests both of the public and of Government.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Deputy Commissioners of Districts.
The Secretary, Public Works Department.
The Comptroller.

PART I.

EDUCATIONAL.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (Education),—dated 7th November 1888.

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPER:—

Report, dated 20th August 1888, from the Education Secretary, on Public Instruction in Mysore for the year ending 31st March 1888.

No. 5240—503. DATED 7TH NOVEMBER 1888.

REVIEW THEREON.—The statistics under Education are very encouraging. There is an increasing demand for Primary education and applications for new schools of this class are earnestly being pressed forward and early measures will have to be adopted for making adequate provision in the Educational Budget. The study of Sanskrit also is receiving greater attention than before and there is a gradually growing desire for female education.

2. At the close of the year there were 1,333 Government and Aided schools educating 54,373 pupils against 1,268 schools with 48,859 pupils of the previous year. Besides these there are Unaided schools numbering 1,125 instructing 15,257 pupils. These figures of the Unaided schools which are not under the supervision and inspection of the Government may not be quite accurate; they are however sufficient to show that private enterprise is not altogether wanting in this field. It would be very desirable to bring these schools as well under Government inspection and institute a system of prizes either in the way of books to pupils or an annual payment of a small gratuity for the best taught schools, thus encouraging private enterprise and creating a healthy rivalry between them and the Government institutions in the neighbourhood. The subject will be considered in all its details in the Educational Department.

3. Most of the pupils are naturally Hindus, 47,787. Muhammadans still are on the background furnishing, comparatively speaking, a very small number, 5,710. The rest are Native Christians, Europeans and Eurasians, including the eight Parsi students and one Budhist.

4. The schools training for the University education are as before three. In only one of which, the Central College, candidates are sent up to the Degree examination. This College is doing fairly well, out of the 79 students who appeared for the Degree, 34 passed out on the whole creditably. The other two schools and the Central College prepare pupils for the First in Arts and the Matriculation examinations as well. The results of the two examinations show that the school in Mysore, the Maharaja's College, has done the best. The failure in the Central College is unaccountably large. No explanation is given in the report read above and the Dewan would be glad to know from Mr. Cook to what he would attribute this large number of failures. The Central College will, probably early next year, be relieved of the task of training for the Matriculation examination, and this it is hoped would improve the character of education here

5. The schools under Secondary education, which classification includes the three collegiate institutions also, have not increased in numbers. There is one such school at each District quarters under purely Government management and there are 3 Aided schools under Missionary agencies. The Matriculation results in all of these are fair, though better results were expected from the Mysore Wesleyan school, the Chitaldroog, Hassan and Shimoga Government schools. The failures in all these were considerable and the Head Masters and the Missionary in charge of the Wesleyan Mission school may be called upon to furnish the Government with an explanation.

6. The Primary education is the branch to which the Government attach very great importance and it is very gratifying to note that it is rapidly being appreciated that more schools are asked for and that masters on the whole are working well. The Government recognize the necessity of improving the staff of teachers in these schools, especially the Hobli schools; their status will have to be raised by granting them better pay which would secure us better educated young men than we now get. The Primary schools in Taluk Head-quarters and some of the Municipal stations including those in Mysore and Bangalore teach English and Kanarese and in some of them Kanarese simply. Pupils are trained for the Madras Middle School examination : 405 candidates were examined and 203 passed, a very encouraging fact.

7. The Hobli schools are getting on well and some of them are so far advanced as to come under Taluk schools. Payment of small fees has been introduced in some of them and the pupils pay them cheerfully.

8. One new feature in some of these minor schools is the attention that is paid to physical training and the Government appreciate the zeal and interest which some of the masters have evinced in this branch of their pupils' education.

9. Female education is not losing ground, considering the weight of prejudice under which it labors and considering also there is at present a sad dearth of female caste teachers of respectability. The girls are in most of these schools taught by men which is an unavoidable disadvantage.

10. Attempts at special training (technical) are successful. The Mysore students both in Poona and Madras have done well and those especially in Poona have, it is very gratifying to observe, earned the very high commendation for character, industry and intelligence which the Principal has bestowed on them in his report to the Bombay Government.

11. Thanks of the Government are due to Mr. Rice, C. I. E., for the efficient supervision of the Department and to the Principal, Professors and Teachers of the schools for the zealous discharge of their onerous duties.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Education Secretary.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore,

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPER :—

Report dated 20th August 1888, on the Mysore Local Examination for the year 1887—88.

No. 5239—502, DATED 7TH NOVEMBER 1888.

REVIEW THEREON.—The report on the results of the Mysore Local Examination is very encouraging. On the recommendation of the Committee, the examination was last year recognized by a Government Notification and the passing of it was made a qualification for the public service. This year is the second of its existence.

2. The registered number of candidates for the examination was 546; of these, 472 presented themselves and 85 only were passed: 9 in the first class, and 72 in the second class. The failures were thus considerable: but the year's results were better than those of the previous year.

3. It is gratifying to note that the public take a lively interest in these examinations and that several prizes have been offered by private gentlemen to successful candidates in the subjects selected by those gentlemen. Thanks of Government are due to them.

4. Examining the figures under failures, it is found that the teachers failed chiefly in language, history and geography. This is a serious reflection on the teaching staff. Arithmetic and the optional subjects the pupils failed in.

5. The net cost to Government for holding these annual examinations is Rs. 3,449—7—0. The fees received amounted to Rs. 543 against Rs. 368 of the last year. The financial result would materially improve in course of time.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Committee for the Mysore Local Examination.

PART I.

ARCHÆOLOGICAL.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (Archæological),—dated 7th November 1888.

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPER:—

Report of the Archæological Department for the year ending 31st March 1888.

No. 5238—501, DATED 7TH NOVEMBER 1888.

REVIEW THEREON.—The Archæological Researches under Mr. Rice have made fair progress considering that the separate department for this purpose was sanctioned only in December last. Nine taluks have been surveyed and over 1,000 inscriptions have been examined : the exact nature of these has not been reported to Government and it will be sometime before complete information can be submitted in the form of a connected narrative.

2. It is however evident that the researches would be very fruitful. Interesting discoveries are being made throwing considerable light on the ancient history of the country, notably the discovery of the perforated screen in the "temple of darkness" a Jain place, the screen containing as reported by Mr. Rice nearly a hundred tableaux of minute sculptured representations of various scenes in the lives of Chandragupta and Bhadrabahu.

3. The proposal that the inscriptions collected should be secured in a part of the Victoria Jubilee Building in Mysore and arranged in chronological order commends itself to Government and arrangements will accordingly be made on the completion of the building.

4. The inattention mentioned in para 4 of the report to the strict orders of Government regarding the prevention of further damage to the inscriptions on the Sravana Belgola Hill will be adequately noticed separately.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Director of Archæological Department.

REVENUE.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (Revenue),—dated 22nd December 1888.

READ :—

The following papers relating to the claim of the Makkandars of Nabisha Makkan for land in exchange for Inam land No. 130 of Annipur village, Bangalore Taluk, taken up in 1874 for the late Model Farm.

1. Dewan's Proceedings No. 2310—11, dated 30th March 1887.
2. Letter from the Deputy Commissioner, Bangalore District, No. 402, dated 7th September 1887.
3. Dewan's Proceedings No. 6032—276, dated 3rd December 1887.
4. Letter from the Deputy Commissioner, Bangalore District, No. 843, dated 31st January 1888.

No. 6308-9—267, DATED 22ND DECEMBER 1888.

ORDER THEREON.—The mortgage deeds of 1847 held by Garudachari, copies of which are submitted with Deputy Commissioner's letter No. 843, dated 31st January 1888, and the Inam registers show that the Makkan lands mortgaged to Garudachari were—

1. No. 130, Dodballkhane, (present No. 102)	..	3 39	32 0 0
and 2. Part of No. 24, Annipura ..		(Area and assessment of this part according to Survey not ascertainable from the records).

The area of the whole No. 24 of Annipura is 16 acres 5 guntas, and its assessment Rs. 25. Part of it was included in the above mortgage to Garudachari, and the remainder was the subject of a separate mortgage to one Sadar Rangappa.

2. Regarding these parts of No. 24, the following information of their extent and assessment under the old accounts is obtained from the Inam register :—

	Extent.		Assessment.
	Kudus.	Padis.	Rs.	A.	P.
Part mortgaged to Garudachari	12	0	11	12	6
Part mortgaged to Sadar Rangappa	6	12	6	10	0
Total Extent.....	88	12	18	6	6

3. The Inam settlement regarding part of No. 24 mortgaged to Garudachari was that it should be confirmed subject to the payment of a quit-rent of Rs. 6 to the Makkan. In regard to part of No. 24 mortgaged to Sadar Rangappa, the Inam settlement was that it should be resumed and restored to Makkan.

4. The whole of this Inam land No. 24 was acquired by the Government for the late Model Farm, and in exchange for this land certain other lands were granted by Government as inam. The numbers, area and assessment of the lands thus granted in exchange are entered below :—

Village.	Survey Nos.	Acres.		Assessment.
		A.	G.	Rs.	A.	P.
Annipur...	3	0	22	0	12	0
Do	4	4	36	6	0	0

Do	6	3	20	4	8	0
Do	7	2	20	3	0	0
Total.....	...	20	18	26	4	0

5. From the facts above stated, it is clear that the Inam settlement as regards land No. 24 should be applied to lands Nos. 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 which were granted in exchange for it. These last named lands must be regarded as inam lands belonging to the Makkan. For such portion of these lands as may be in Garudachari's possession as mortgagee, in lieu of part of No. 24, there should be paid to the Makkan an annual quit-rent of Rs. 6. The portions in possession of Sadar Rangappa should be resumed in accordance with the Inam settlement regarding the remainder of No. 24 Any other alienations not dealt with by the Inam Department should now be disposed of by the Deputy Commissioner under Chief Commissioner's Notification No. 266, dated 17th November 1877, so as to give the Makkan the full benefit (as far as the law allows) of the Inam lands given in exchange for No. 24.

6. In regard to Sadar Rangappa's claim, if upon enquiry the Deputy Commissioner is of opinion that the inam decision in his case is unjust because the mortgage deed before the Inam Department was a renewal of an old mortgage deed of 1846—47 which brought the case under Class A of Rule II of the aforesaid Notification, then, in that case, the Deputy Commissioner will hold the Inam decision in abeyance and report the case for revision of the Inam settlement.

7. In respect of land No. 24, neither the Makkandars nor the mortgagees nor the occupants have any claim whatsoever against the Government. As already stated, a liberal inam has been granted in exchange for it, and the Government expressly ordered that the lands granted in exchange should be put in possession of the various parties in actual enjoyment of the land taken up (vide late Nundydroog Division Commissioner's order to the Amildar of Bangalore Taluk No. 153, dated 1st October 1877). It may also be observed that the lands granted in exchange were kandayam lands bought by Government for Rs. 2,069—12—3 for the express purpose of giving them as inam in lieu of No. 24 which had been acquired for a public purpose on a valuation of Rs. 1,048—2—0 (or Rs. *1,185—15—0.)

Vide* para 8 of Deputy Commissioner's letter No. 402, dated 7th September 1887.

8. Similar remarks also apply to Inam land No. 3 of Annipur acquired by Government on a valuation of about Rs. 105, for which was granted in exchange land, new No. 100, for which Government paid about Rs. 139. This land No. 100 should be treated in accordance with the principles laid down in para 5 above, in so far as they may be applicable.

9. From the observations in the two preceding paragraphs, it will be seen that it is impossible that the Government can accept the Deputy Commissioner's recommendation (in para 8 of his letter No. 402, dated 7th September 1887) for a distribution of the compensation for lands Nos. 24 and 3 (Rs. 1,185—15—0+ Rs. 106—9—6); for, as a matter of fact, the Government have already paid a very full and liberal compensation for the lands in question. The Dewan cannot believe that the Makkandars would have preferred so preposterous a claim as the one they appear to have made before the Deputy Commissioner, if they knew the true effect of the grant of Inam lands in exchange for Nos. 24 and 3.

10. Regarding land No. 130 of Dodballkhane, the compensation fixed for it was Rs. 1,858—14—7. The Government have already paid Rs. 1,440—14—7 out of this amount, and the balance of Rs. 418 still remains unpaid owing to disputes between the Makkandar and the mortgagee Garudachari. The amount can be paid to Garudachari only if he accepts the liability to make an annual payment of Rs. 10 to the Makkan in accordance with the Inam settlement of land No. 130. It is obvious that owing to the conversion of the land into money under process of law, all incidents which formerly attached to the land must now attach to the money.

11. The amount of Garudachari's mortgage is 206 pagodas 2 fanams according to the Inam register. In the copies of mortgage deeds now forwarded, it is entered (probably owing to a clerical mistake) as 200 pagodas + 60 pagodas and 2½ fanams. The correspondence shows that Rs. 600 was the amount of the mortgage upon the two lands in question. The Inam settlement confirmed to him the possession of the mortgaged lands subject to the payment of a quit-rent to the Makkan as follows:—

			Rs.
No. 130	... Quit rent	... ...	10
Part of No. 24	... ,,	... ...	6
		Total.....	16

As No. 130 has been taken up by Government and as other lands have been granted in exchange for part of No. 24, Garudachari's mortgage lien attaches to the unpaid portion of the value of No. 130 (viz. Rs. 418) as well as to the lands granted in exchange for part of No. 24, subject to the payment of a quit-rent of Rs. 10+6 to the Makkan. As Garudachari is already in possession of lands granted in exchange for part of No. 24 and as for those lands he is liable to pay a quit-rent of Rs. 6, he is now entitled to Rs. 418 from Government subject to the payment to the Makkan of Rs. 10 per annum. As he has failed to receive this amount and has not accepted the offers made in Proceedings Camp No. 2310—11, dated 30th March 1887, the Deputy Commissioner will invest, in the Government Savings Bank in his own name on behalf of the Makkan and the mortgagee Garudachari, the sum of Rs. 418, and out of the annual proceeds from such investment, he will pay to the Makkan Rs. 10 in lieu of the quit-rent due to it and hold the remainder under Revenue deposit payable to Garudachari.

12. The Makkan will of course be entitled to redeem Garudachari's mortgage, and upon such redemption, it will be entitled to the inam lands granted in exchange for part of No. 24, subject to the rights of occupants, if any, and to the sum of Rs. 418 invested as above.

13. As the Government have already paid Rs 1,440—14—7 the greater part of the value of the land No. 130, they must decline to grant an inam equivalent to its full value.

14. There has been much time wasted over this case owing to an imperfect comprehension of the rights involved, and owing to some inaccurate statements and correspondence on the record, some errors of facts have crept into Proceedings Nos. 1980-2—147 and 2310—11, dated 1st July 1884 and 30th March 1887, respectively. It is hoped that the instructions now issued will enable the Deputy Commissioner to dispose of the case finally.

FINANCIAL.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (Financial),—dated 8th December 1888.

READ—

The following letters from the Inspector General of Forests, soliciting sanction to grants required for Khadda operations in the Mysore District :—

1. No. 1973—154, dated 31st October 1888.
2. No. 2270—172, dated 3rd December 1888.

From the Inspector General of Forests and Plantations in Mysore, To the Chief Secretary to the Dewan of Mysore, No. 2214—168, dated Bangalore, 29th November 1888.

I have the honor to forward for submission to the Dewan, copy of letter No. 5, dated 17th current, from Mr. Sanderson, Superintendent of Khaddas, Dacca, informing me of certain arrangements required in connection with Khadda operations in the Mysore District, and to state that I have taken steps to give effect to his suggestions as far as possible.

2. Mr. Sanderson has decided upon employing a Writer and a Sub-Overseer whose pay he does not specify in the present letter. But he has put down, in the Memo attached to his letter No. 2, dated 20th July last, Rs. 20 with a monthly batta of Rs. 5 for a Clerk, and Rs. 50 plus Rs. 10 batta for an Overseer. Now that a Sub-Overseer having been decided on, I have thought it necessary to fix, subject to revision, if necessary, the pay of Clerk at Rs. 25 and that of the Sub-Overseer at Rs. 30, with the monthly batta of Rs. 5 and 10 respectively. Mr. Sanderson has nominated men for these posts from the Forest and Police Departments and with reference to their present salaries the above scale has been fixed, giving them a little higher pay for all the privations they have to undergo. Subject to approval of Government and in reference to my letter No. 1973—154, dated 31st ultimo, I beg to submit for early sanction a statement showing the requisite grant for both fixed establishment and working charges, out of which all hunters from Chittagong and Dacca, Trackers, Mahouts and Kalihat Company recruited as required, will have to be paid, in addition to charges connected with feed and keep of elephants.

3. Besides Rs. 20,900 to be sanctioned as working charges, a further sum of Rs. 10,000 has also to be sanctioned for the purchase of 5 more trained elephants from Dacca. In a recent telegram from you, I gather, though I am not sure, that Palace elephants cannot be lent for Khadda operations and from para 8 of Mr. Sanderson's letter, it will be seen that further they are untrained for the purpose required, and the Dewan has therefore acceded to his proposal to send 5 more trained elephants from Dacca. In anticipation of formal sanction, I have authorized Mr. Sanderson to send them down along with the 7 elephants already bought.

From the Superintendent of Government Khaddas, Dacca, To the Inspector General of Police and Forests, Mysore, No. 5, dated 17th November 1888.

I have the honor to inform you that after arriving at Bangalore on the 8th instant, and discussing Khadda arrangements with you, I proceeded to Mysore on the 9th ; had an interview with the Dewan ; and on the 10th I arrived with Mr. Mahabala Rao at Morle. Mr. Bakshi Bassavappaji also accompanied me. On that day, and the succeeding three, I examined the site of the Khadda at Nirdurgi ; and having settled for two base camps (Morle and Yerlsariga), the line of a road, and other matters, I returned to Mysore on the 14th. Here I had the honor of an interview with His Highness the Maharaja, to whom I explained my plans, as well as to the Dewan. I also had the pleasure of seeing the Chief Secretary, and the Deputy Commissioner. I may here say that I received the greatest attention and personal kindness from all these official gentlemen ; whilst in our trip to the jungles, Mr. Bassavappaji entertained the whole camp, including the jungle men with whom my business lay ; and his great kindness and liberality has further roused the interest they all have in the success of the Khadda operations. I returned to Bangalore yesterday, and I beg now to make a short report on the arrangements I have made, pending your approval ; or which I recommend shall be made.

2. The accompanying rough sketch will serve to explain the plan of hunting my original Khadda (A) of 1877 was surrounded (some five years ago) by a larger one (B) by Mr. Russell. I quite approve of this work. The whole trap is very advantageously situated in a gorge, of which the last four miles a natural cul le sac. The elephants can pass freely to and fro through the trap till hunting begins. Then supposing a herd to be in the low country, one man will be able in five minutes to bar its return to the Hills by lowering the gates on the east side. When in the low-country, the elephants will probably be at one of the 3 positions marked Hebhalla, Uphalla, and Punjur. The first operation is to get them within the gorge, that is, between line C and the Khadda. 100 men will be sent to occupy the side hills, along the lines D-D. If the herd be at Hebhalla, the two lines marked H-H, must also be occupied. If at Uphalla, the line O will be guarded ; and if at Punjur, the two lines P and C. The hill marked Munibetta is a very prominent one and will enable the whole operations to be directed by signals from one centre.

3. The first day nothing more should be attempted than to get the elephants within the gorge. This may mean a drive of three or four miles. In such an operation outlying portions of herds often have to be brought together, and anyhow a herd encumbered with young calves cannot be driven far or fast without danger of being broken up. Moreover, the hunters are often miles apart, and unable to communicate, and in a too long drive they may get into disorder.

4. Supposing the elephants to have been brought into the gorge, (which affords ample fodder and shelter), the 200 or 300 men who may have been driving and guarding the lines outside the gorge will close up and occupy line C, and strengthen the 100 men already guarding the sides of the gorge (lines D-D). The elephants are pretty certain to enter the Khadda or trap of their own accord during the night, and here the services of the experienced Dacca men will be invaluable. Trained hands will quickly ascertain, even in a dark and stormy night, whether all the elephants have entered, and if so the gates will be closed. Should the elephants not be entrapped during the night, they will be driven in next day, the guards round the gorge maintaining the cordon the while till the herd is safely entrapped.

5. Of course all this is not quite so simple in execution as it is to describe. I have not mentioned the hills, valleys, and thickets we shall have to deal with, nor the possibility of rain impeding us. But these and other difficulties can be met by long and careful preparation beforehand. The lines of communication will be cleared 15 yards wide, and a smooth path made along each ; a heap of stones will be placed to mark each man's position ; the number of men required for any combination will be known, and the men trained to their posts ; and more than one re-hearsal must be gone through. I need not here mention other details, all of which I have fully explained to Mr. Mahabal Rao.

6. The Kalihat company will find ample occupation till June in arranging the 20 miles of communication lines, in preparing the Khadda gates, building small bungalows, store houses, huts, road-making, &c Some assistance will be required from the raiyats in two matters, firstly, in constructing the road (marked) from Hardanhalli to Yerlsariga, 10 miles, (this is in view to His Highness the Maharaja and other distinguished visitors seeing the Khadda) : 2ndly, for repairing the trenches, about 1½ miles, of the Khadda. The road is not a serious matter, as beyond some banking through low ground in two places, little else is required than removing stones and stumps, much of which the Kalihats are now doing. I made this road once before, 13 years ago, to drive a pony-cart along. For the trench work, about 2,000 men's labor for a day will suffice.

7. I will now detail certain arrangements I beg may be ordered, if approved.

1st. As regards my Assistant, Mr. Mahabal Rao, I presume he will be placed under the Deputy Commissioner as to his accounts, and minor matters.

2nd. My order to him may, I would suggest, be sent directly, or through yourself, as circumstances may require.

3rd. Should Mr. Mahabal Rao think it expedient to transfer any expenditure from one head to another, he may obtain my sanction, under which general authority the Accounts Department should pass the same. I will not allow the total estimate to be exceeded. Its amount (Rs. 20,406) will be ample and probably a considerable saving will be effected.

4th. Mr. Mahabal Rao should, I think, have a standing advance of Rs. 500.

5th. His and his establishment's pay (Rs. 600-620) should be drawn on Chamrajnagar, and provision should be made against delays occurring.

6th. The following two men whom I have decided on as suitable for the Khadda Writership and Sub-Overseership may, I request, be made available as follows :—

as Writer,—Kesava Rao, Forest Department Writer, Tumkur, on deputation till further notice.

as Sub-Overseer.—Abba Jetti, now Police Dafadar, at Wudegal, Chamrajnagar Taluk. This man may also be placed on deputation.

7th. Mr. Mahabal Rao should be supplied with a workman and some dynamite, if convenient, when he applies for the same, for removing some rocks in the trenches.

8th. The Department under which the Honglewaddi channel is worked might be instructed to allow the grass "Kagi Narlu," to grow on the bund. This was one of the main fodder resources when I captured elephants in 1874, but the grass is now kept down. The channel runs for some miles through jungle, and only has cultivation towards the end, and the growth of this excellent fodder is very important.

9th. A considerable area of what used to be waste land under the Honglewaddi channel was cultivated by me formerly with plantains and Kagi Narlu, as fodder. It has been taken up as paddy land since those days. Mr. Bassavappaji says he can arrange its amicable transfer for fodder growing. The Deputy Commissioner might be asked to see this carried out, calling on Mahabal Rao to point out the land I showed him. If necessary, some small yearly sum may be paid to the owner of the land and it may be taken on the understanding of its reverting to its present owner if given up hereafter.

10th. The Amildar of Chamrajnagar may be directed to prohibit all cattle grazing from May 1st till December 31st in the jungle between the Suvnavatti river and the Biligirirangan hills, commencing at Punjur, and ending on the north side along the Hebbalu, and Forest Reserve line. I have satisfied myself that this will not be a hardship to any one. Also, all shooting at all times in the above tract, and in the Biligirirangan Hills, should be prohibited. The Tamnah people at Punjur might be supplied with a notice in English, to be shown to any one coming from Coimbatore.

11th. The Forest Department may be requested to allow Mahabal Rao to take such small wood and bamboos as are required for stores, &c., and a few reserved trees for stockade gates. Also, that the Forester in Chamrajnagar may be allowed to give such assistance in Khadda matters as he may be able. He seems a willing and hardworking man and he asked to be allowed to help.

8. I ventured to recommend to the Dewan to authorize me to send 5 more elephants from Dacca, to make up the 12 I originally recommended for Khadda work, because the elephants in the Mysore Philkhana are untrained : they can only learn in actual practice, and at that time there is no leisure to train them. The Dewan acceded to this proposal, and I request I may be officially authorized to send 12, instead of 7 elephants, on the same terms as the others.

9. I also suggested that Raghunath Rao, Amildar of Goribidnur, and formerly of Chamrajnagar, might be retransferred there, being acquainted as he is with Khadda requirements, and being popular with the raiyats. This the Dewan was pleased to approve.

CAMP No. 1999-2000, DATED 8TH DECEMBER 1888.

ORDER THEREON.—With his letter No. 2214—168, dated 29th November 1888, the Inspector General of Forests submits an estimate amounting to Rs. 50,000 required for Khadda operations in the Mysore District for a period of 12 months. The estimate provides for the establishment and other expenses required, and for the price of 5 elephants to be purchased from the Dacca Establishment, in addition to the 7 elephants already purchased for Rs. 14,000.

2. The estimate as per enclosed amended statement, amounting to Rs. 48,660, is sanctioned. Regarding Mr. Sanderson's remuneration, a separate communication will follow.

3. The arrangements proposed by Mr. Sanderson in para 7 of his letter No. 5, dated 17th November 1888, are generally approved, and the Inspector General of Forests will be requested to give effect to them as far as possible.

RESOLUTION.

The practical application of sanitary principles to towns and villages in India has since the publication in 1863 of the Report of the Royal Commission on the Sanitary State of the Army in India received the continuous attention of the Government. The Report of the Royal Commission, the reports submitted subsequently from time to time by the various Provincial Sanitary Commissioners, and the suggestive reviews of these reports which have emanated from the Army Sanitary Commission in England, have brought to notice the chief sanitary defects of urban and rural areas, and have indicated the methods by which they might be remedied. It is through no want of sympathy with the cause of sanitary improvement that the Government of India has not been able hitherto to give as full effect to these recommendations as it could have wished. The difficulties to be overcome were numerous and formidable, and lay, to begin with, as much in the ignorance of the people and in the passive resistance offered by them to all departures from the practice of ages, as in the want of funds and the absence of an executive agency to give effect to the orders of the central authority. However convinced the Government of India might be of the value of the suggestions made for its adoption, and however anxious to carry them into effect, it had to proceed with circumspection, and with a due regard to the means at its disposal as well as to the prejudices of the heterogeneous populations entrusted to its care. Under such circumstances progress has unavoidably been slow. Still considerable progress has been made. The ignorance of the people on all sanitary questions has been in some measure mitigated by the Department of Public Education, which has imported into the ordinary school curriculum instruction in the elementary principles of sanitary science. Popular prejudices have been combated by the judicious influence of the officers of Government, and by the introduction of improved sanitary methods, wherever this was practicable. Sanitary Commissioners have been appointed in all Provinces; information regarding the sanitary needs of towns, and later of rural areas, has been collected; and in many Municipalities and some rural areas this information has been turned to account in the provision of a pure water-supply, of improved drainage, and of better conservancy arrangements. The Government of India readily admits that what has been done in these directions may appear small in comparison with what remains to be done. But it does not admit that, having regard to the difficulties which lay in the way, reasonable progress has not been made.

2. It has been stated that the main obstacles which have hitherto impeded sanitary improvement in India lay in the ignorance of the masses and their dislike to any change of custom, in the want of efficient executive agencies, and last, though not least, in the want of funds. Upon the first of these obstacles, the Governor-General in Council does not on the present occasion desire to dwell. It indeed still constitutes a formidable difficulty, upon which, in rural areas at all events, little sensible impression has yet been made, and its existence renders it necessary still to observe great caution in the introduction of sanitary reforms. But with the rapidly advancing tide of popular education, the perception of the beneficent intentions of the Government comes home more clearly to the people than it did; and there is less danger than there was that measures taken for the improvement of the health of the people and the prevention of disease should be misconstrued as arbitrary interference with time-honored practices. If some years ago it was generally and correctly felt by Local Governments and Administrations that authoritatively to press the subject of sanitary improvement, especially in villages, would be of little avail, and that persuasion, not coercion, was the right plan to follow, it is no less generally felt to-day that a more forward, though still cautious and tentative, policy would now be opportune.

3. In considering therefore the measures most calculated to promote the cause of sanitary reform in India, attention should, in the first place, be directed to the question of executive agencies, and to the question of funds. Taking the question of executive agency first, it has to be regarded in its relation to urban and to rural areas. In relation to urban areas, the Governor-General in Council is glad to think that the question now presents far less difficulty than it did. When sanitary reform in India received its first impetus from the investigations of the Royal Commission referred to in the preamble, there was, outside the Presidency towns practically no organization for the prosecution of sanitary work. The hardworked district officer did what he could to keep his towns clean; but sanitary science in India was then in its infancy, while the most enlightened inhabitants of Mofussil towns know nothing about it, and never troubled themselves to learn anything. The result was manifest in the lamentable state of things depicted in the Report of the Royal Commission. Since then, however, there has been much improvement. The growth of the spirit of self-help and the perception of the advantages of sanitation in municipalities has in recent years been encouraging; and there is reason to think that the Government may with increasing confidence rely on the co-operation of municipal bodies in promoting sanitary reform. The Municipal Acts, which formerly were adapted to an early stage of civic development, have now been cast in an ampler mould. Those now in force in the various Provinces confer a larger discretion and authority to pass rules and bye-laws for sanitary purposes, and impose upon Municipal Committees the duty, as far as the funds at their disposal will permit, of providing, among other things, for the sanitation of the towns. Municipal Boards can, therefore, both entertain the requisite agency for carrying out the law, and raise the necessary funds. The areas to be dealt with are limited, and within them the interests of the people affected are mostly identical. There is a field for concentrated effort; and the Government may, therefore, with greater confidence look to Municipal Committees for active assistance in carrying into effect the measures of sanitary improvement declared to be necessary for the towns over which they preside.

4. In rural areas the case is different. Among the village population the sense of the need for sanitary reform is but little, if at all, more developed than it was when the Royal Commission reported a quarter of a century ago. The great feature of Indian rural life is immobility of custom, upon which novel ideas make but little impression. For improving the sanitation of villages executive rules have been from time to time framed and recommended for general adoption. It does not appear however that they were anywhere productive of much good, for there was no executive agency to supervise their working or, when necessary, enforce them.

But in this important matter of executive agency a great improvement has been effected by the District and Local Boards Acts passed by the Legislative Council of the Governor-General and by the various local legislatures. In the Madras Presidency a gradation of rural Boards has been established, one of which deals with the village; another with the sub-division of a district; a third with the entire district. All these Boards have their special functions to discharge; but each has to provide within the area of its jurisdiction for the sanitation of towns and villages, and to that end is endowed with powers to entertain the necessary establishments. In Bengal and the Punjab the organization established, or to be established, is on the whole similar to that established in Madras; and though under the system introduced in Bombay, the North-Western Provinces, and Central Provinces, a larger territorial unit of self-government has been adopted, there is no reason why the executive agencies should not act effectively throughout the larger areas. The various Acts of the Legislature, which create this system of local self-government, require the Boards to undertake, among other things, local works and measures likely to promote the health of the public within the area subject to their authority, and empower them to entertain establishments for that purpose. In some instances also the laws creating these bodies confer upon them limited powers of taxation. But when this is not the case, or when it may be inexpedient to resort to taxation, or when funds may be insufficient to meet the expenditure necessary for sanitary and other improvements, it is always open to the Boards, with the sanction of the Local Government, to have recourse to loans under Act XI of 1879 (The Local Authorities Loan Act).

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General),—dated 18th December 1888.

This legislation has therefore provided the Government of India, for the first time, with the means of creating that agency for executing sanitary reform in rural areas without which its previous exertions proved comparatively fruitless. The agency, even in the Provinces in which it has been established, is as yet in its infancy; but year by year it will grow stronger and more efficient, and the Governor-General in Council therefore desires to impress upon Local Governments that, from the beginning, the promotion of sanitation should be regarded as one of the most important duties of all District and Local Boards, and of Village Unions, where they exist.

5. In initiating and carrying approved sanitary measures into effect, it will be always essential to enlist the assistance and co-operation of the district authorities, which indeed are always available to Municipalities and Local Boards. But it must be remembered that District officers, who have generally shown themselves forward in promoting sanitary improvements and in co-operating with Local Boards in these matters, have neither the time nor the technical knowledge, nor the opportunities requisite for a comprehensive survey of the entire field of activity which is necessary for the discharge of the duties in question. Experience in India as well as in other countries has shown that, unless local executive agencies are carefully guided and controlled in sanitary matters, there is almost certain to be misdirection of energy and wasteful expenditure. As has been pertinently observed, "it is vain to hope that the numerous public bodies to which the sanitary administration of India has been committed will be found competent to discharge their important duties, so long as there is no competent authority possessing the necessary knowledge and armed with the necessary powers to assist their deliberations, guide their actions, and, when the occasion arises, correct their mistakes and remedy their inactivity." It therefore appears to the Government of India to be eminently desirable that there should be established in each Province a Sanitary Board through which the Local Government can operate, and to which, subject in all respects to the orders of the Local Government, shall be entrusted the control and supervision over sanitary works, whether undertaken in urban or rural areas. It was one of the recommendations of Lord Stanley's Commission, referred to in the preamble to this Resolution, that a Commission of Health should be appointed at the seat of each Local Government, with purely consultative functions, to advise on all questions relating to sanitation. Something more than a consultative body is, in the opinion of His Excellency in Council, now required; and the Sanitary Boards which he wishes to create should therefore from the outset receive recognition, not only as a consultative body, but also as the executive agency through which the Government acts in the Sanitary Department.

These Sanitary Boards might be composed of an officer of approved administrative experience, the Sanitary Commissioner for the Province, and an officer of the Public Works Department skilled in sanitary engineering. With these three officers might be associated one or more non-official members appointed by the Local Government. Every Commissioner of Division in Northern India and Bombay, and possibly District Collectors in Madras, might also be ex-officio members of the Board when dealing with questions connected with their Divisions or Districts. It is probable that the duties of the Board would not, at all events for some time to come, be onerous, and could well be combined with the other and ordinary duties of the members.

Finally, it is desirable that the Provincial Sanitary Boards should, subject to the orders of the various Local Governments, be in constant communication with the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, whose advice upon large schemes of sanitary reform will always be useful, and who will be in a position to communicate to one Provincial Board the results of experience gained by another. The Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, who acts under the general instructions of the Home Department, will thus, so far as may be needed, exercise the functions of a general co-ordinating and consultative authority; and through him the Government of India will be in a position to enforce, if necessary that general control which it is competent to exercise over all branches of the administration. It may afterwards be necessary to associate with the Sanitary Commissioner an expert in sanitary engineering science: but this is a question which need not be raised in this place.

6. In orders issued by the Home Department on Municipal and Local Board reports for 1885—86, cited in the preamble to this Resolution, the Governor-General in Council took the opportunity of laying down the general lines on which in his opinion, future action of local bodies should be directed in promoting sanitary reform. The principle which he had in view was, that action should be preceded by an accurate ascertainment of the requirements of each locality. Accordingly it was suggested to various Local Governments that a sanitary survey of each municipality and rural area should be undertaken with as little delay as possible, and that plans and estimates should be prepared of all the improvements necessary to provide each town or village with an efficient system of water-supply, drainage, and conservancy. The most important of these requirements, and that which, in the opinion of the Government of India, may at first be dealt with most effectively, and with the greatest chance of the active assistance and sympathy of the people, is the provision of pure water. Drainage,—especially in those localities in which the construction of public works, such as railways and canal embankments, have interfered with the natural flow of water, and may have injuriously affected the people's health,—is also a matter calling for early attention. But, while thus indicating the directions in which sanitation can be best promoted, there is on the part of the Governor-General in Council no desire to limit the discretion of Local and Provincial authorities as to their choice of action. That can best be determined by a knowledge of local requirements. In the orders in question it was added that plans, when once fixed, should be executed from year to year as funds become available, the object aimed at being persistently kept in view until it was completed. The Government of India desires in this place to call special attention to these instructions, which were devised with the view of checking wasteful recurring expenditure; and to express the hope that the annual reports on the Administration of Municipalities and Local Boards in each Province will henceforward show that progress is being made in the desired direction.

Another important matter to which attention must here be called is the provision in every Province of simple rules for the regulation of village sanitation. In some Provinces such rules have been for some time in operation, though with no very beneficial result, while in others it is now in contemplation to render such rules more effectual by legislation. Wherever the existing law makes no provision, or insufficient provision, for the enforcement of necessary sanitary measures in rural areas, there should be no hesitation in taking the necessary power by legislation. And in this connection His Excellency in Council thinks it may be of advantage if the attention of all interested in sanitation is again called to the valuable remarks made in 1879 by the Army Sanitary Commission on the practical application of sanitary principles to towns and villages in India. Their remarks are, therefore, published as an appendix to this Resolution.

7. Passing from the organization of the Sanitary Department to the important question of the provision of funds, it is in the first place, to be observed that the various Municipal Acts enable the corporate bodies created by these Acts to raise by local taxation the funds necessary for local expenditure. Similar power is conferred on Local Boards by the Madras, Bengal, and Punjab Local Boards Acts, but apparently not elsewhere. It will be for the consideration of the Governments of Bombay and the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, which possess Legislative Councils, whether legislation should be undertaken with a view to confer powers of taxation upon Local Boards in those Provinces. Meanwhile it is incumbent on the Governments of the Provinces in question to place Local Boards in possession of funds sufficient to meet the reasonable requirements of local sanitation. But though sufficient money to meet current expenditure may be provided in these ways, it will probably be necessary to raise additional funds for the execution of new or large works. It is indeed probable that local income may be increased without any hardship to the tax-payers. In certain Provinces some productive methods of municipal taxation have not yet been turned to account: but even when all current revenue is taken into account, it may, and doubtless often will, be found necessary to have recourse to loans under Act XI of 1879 or to appeals to the Provincial or Imperial Governments for grants-in-aid of local resources.

With reference to loans, the Governor-General in Council desires to say that so long as borrowed money is not spent on the ordinary current operations of a Municipal or Local Board,—so long as it is spent on works of lasting utility, there can, as a matter of principle, be no objection to imposing on the ratepayers of future years an obligation to subscribe. The Local Authorities Loan Act, XI of 1879, affords certain facilities for borrowing by public bodies; but the rates of interest at which these bodies can raise the loans in the open market are often so high as to be practically prohibitive. The Governor-General in Council has therefore taken the subject of loans to Local bodies into his careful consideration, being satisfied that no policy of sanitary reform in India can be successful unless facilities are provided for local bodies to raise funds for sanitary improvements on less onerous terms than they at present can do. The Government of India has not yet come to a final conclusion on this important subject; but it is not indisposed to think that, when expensive works of the kind in question have received the previous approval of Government and when sufficient control over the local finances has been reserved to ensure the fulfilment of the conditions on which the raising of the loan is sanctioned, it might be expedient to authorize Local Governments, subject to certain prescribed limitations and conditions, to raise and establish a Provincial loan fund, and make its own bargains with local bodies in regard to advances necessary for sanitary improvements and other works of lasting utility. The question is one of general policy, which demands careful consideration; but the decision upon it will not now be long delayed.

8. With reference to the subject of contributions from Provincial funds for sanitary works of utility, His Excellency in Council has observed with satisfaction that a willingness has already been exhibited to contribute from Provincial resources in aid of sanitary improvements, both in urban and rural areas. Where the ability of local bodies to raise loans is undeveloped and their credit not established, the Government of India approves of such contributions, and would like to see regular provision made for them in Provincial budgets, when this can be done with a just regard to other demands on Local Governments. In some cases—such, for instance, as obstructed drainage, incidentally referred to in paragraph 6 above, as resulting from great public works—contributions would be obviously appropriate. But if contributions are to take a definite place in the plan of Provincial finance, His Excellency in Council would be glad to see them systematised on the grant-in-aid principle, which has been found so effective in promoting education, care being taken to so regulate the distribution of the grants as to minimise the evils, inherent in the grant-in-aid system, of weakening local responsibility and fostering extravagence in expenditure.

Under the system indicated above, it will, it is hoped, be possible to meet from Local resources the money necessary for Local sanitary improvements. There may, however, be very exceptional cases the requirements of which cannot be met from Local or Provincial resources or by loans. In such rare cases the Government of India will not refuse to consider applications from Local Governments in the interests of sanitary improvements of more than local importance.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the above Resolution be forwarded to Local Governments and Administrations for information and guidance; that a copy be forwarded to the Department of Finance and Commerce and to the Public Works Department, for information; and that a copy be forwarded to the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, for information.

Also that the Resolution be published in the Gazette of India.

I.

Practical Hints for the Sanitary Improvement of the smaller Municipal Towns in India.

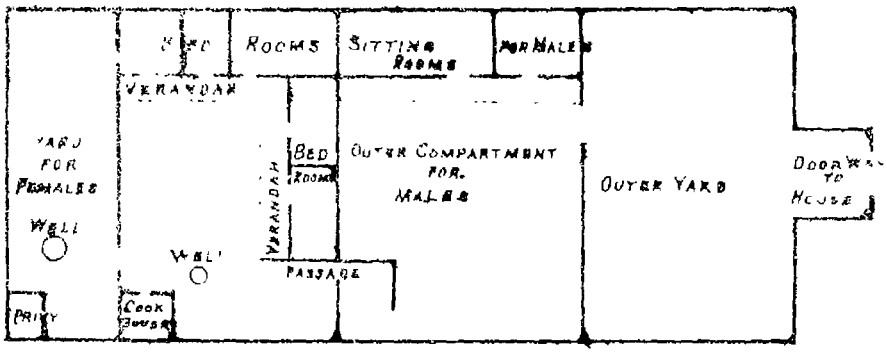
1. In the larger cities and towns in India, employing their own Engineers and Officers of Health, the foundation of sanitary improvement must be laid in works of domestic sewerage and drainage, in water-supply brought from a distance. in surface levelling, paving, and cleansing, and in surface drainage. These, together with opening up new thoroughfares, tree planting, and improved house construction, where sufficient funds are available, will improve the general health, and mitigate or prevent outbreaks of epidemic disease in all the larger groups of population. They are not only the most effectual measures which can be adopted for these objects, but for large dense populations they are in the end the cheapest.

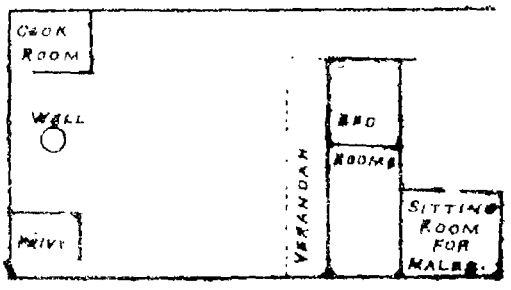
In the smaller municipalities the chief difficulty that lies in the way of adopting them is, that where there are a few thousand people, most of whom are of the poorer classes, funds are limited, and there is no local source from which the capital sums required for the execution of permanent works can be drawn, at least at present. Although public health measures to be executed mainly by hand labour may be more costly than the current outlay for permanent works, still much may be done among small populations by the proper application of limited income: and the object of the present paper is to point out, as far as it may be practicable to do so, the chief directions in which limited local expenditure may be applied to effect this object. But the nature and extent of legislative and administrative measures and authorities required to give practical effect to the principles embodied in the following paragraphs, whether for small municipal towns or villages, must be left solely to the authorities in India.

2. In all municipalities the two primary means of preventing outbursts of disease are strict attention to domestic cleanliness, and the protection of water-sources.

There is every reason for suspecting that the chief disease causes in all Indian towns are to be found within the walls which enclose the compounds and houses.

Here are sketch of two classes of houses, taken from a Bengal report. The first of well-to-do people; the second is a middle class house.



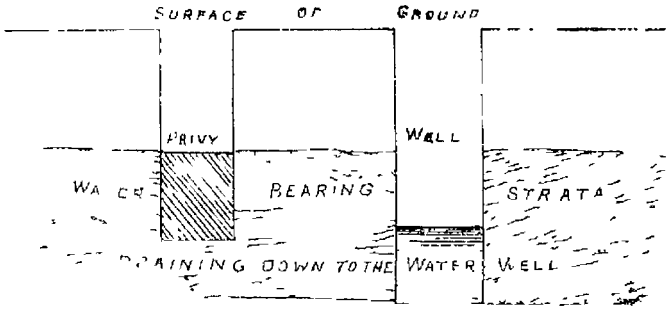


These houses, from being enclosed within walls, have no proper ventilation, and the rooms are so dark as sometimes to require a lamp day and night.

In some parts of India it is the practice to cover in the entire courtyard, so that foul exhalations are prevented from escaping into the air. In such cases ventilations of the court as well as of the houses is required. The huts of the poor have generally no enclosure walls, and have one door to the hut ; they have hence more light and air.

3. The privies in all these houses are described as being " made of wells in which the dirt accumulates for years."

The plans show that the water wells are dug in the same soil close to the privies , and this rough sketch shows the dangers to health arising from such an arrangement :



There cannot be a doubt that the well water under such circumstances is liable to constant pollution by infiltration of liquid filth from the privy, and also by foul surface washings from the yard, which is often in an exceedingly filthy state from the urine and dung of animals as well as of human beings.

Where houses have been long inhabited, the whole ground within the court walls under the sleeping rooms, from which the well draws most of its water, is fouled, and the inhabitants are exposed to all the consequences of living on foul ground, breathing impure air, especially at night, and drinking unwholesome water.

The simplest way of avoiding these dangers would be by rebuilding the houses on new ground, and adopting precautions to prevent the subsoil being polluted with filth. But as this cannot be done, the next best thing is to remedy the present evils as far as it may be practicable to do so.

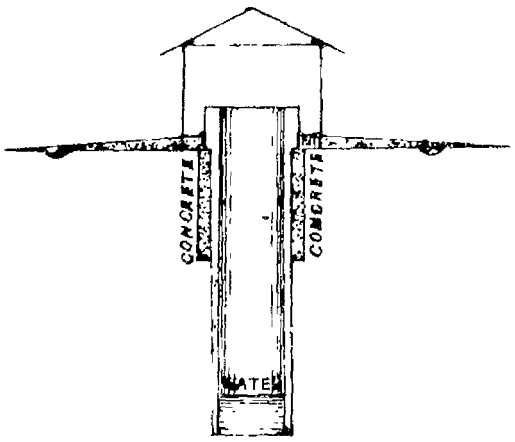
4. The first step is obviously to prevent further pollution of the ground by cleansing and filling up all cesspits and filth wells. In many instances it would be advantageous to dig up and remove the surface earth of the compounds, and to replace it with fresh clean earth. Wherever means are available, the surface of the court or compound should be covered with paving, or some other hard impermeable material, such as rammed kunkur, and drained by channels to the streets outside.

Where a durable material for surface paving cannot be obtained, the most efficient substitute would probably be found in fresh clay hard rammed, so as to form a hard impervious surface, to be renewed by clean material at short intervals.

No cattle should ever be kept in small compounds. Besides the constant danger to health inseparable from this practice, it ensures rapid pollution of the subsoil, augments the difficulty of cleansing, and fouls the well water.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General),—dated 13th December 1888.

5. Where the cesspit has been close to the house well in the manner shown in the plans, it would be better to fill the well up with clean earth, and dig another as far as possible from the site of the cesspit. All new wells should be cased outside with clay or cement, or with concrete, to a sufficient depth to cut off the surface and subsoil water from the well, in the manner shown in the following section :



The well is dug and built up in the usual way, but when it comes within 8 or 10 feet of the surface, the tube must be coated outside with puddle or concrete, to cut off the upper portion of the water. The tube of the well should be carried two feet above the ground level, and covered with a roof : the ground round the well should also be coated with concrete and sloped away from the well to open channels, as shown in the plan. With the precautions, which are not difficult to take, and not costly, any well within a compound, except in very foul ground, would yield wholesome water.

6. The abolition of well or cesspit privies being absolutely necessary before the water for domestic use can be safe, the only principle that can be adopted in their stead is that of continuous daily cleansing, and removal of all house filth and refuse of food, &c. The floor of the privy should be paved or covered with concrete or asphalte, and a movable vessel placed upon it to be daily removed and emptied by sweepers, with or without the use of dry earth. There is absolutely no other safe plan except daily removal. If from any local cause daily removal cannot be carried out, then it may be suggested that the municipal authority should construct groups of privies with private keys for the use of families, and that all conveniences of the kind within private compounds should at the same time be abolished. The whole surface of the compound should be kept clean day by day.

7. As much of the fever from which the people suffer is due to sleeping on the ground, no greater improvement could be introduced by the municipality than inducing the people to use beds raised above the ground level.

Were these simple improvements carried out in the smaller municipal towns there would be considerable improvement in the public health, so far as the houses are concerned.

They may be summarized as follows :

(1) Abolishing all cesspits and privy wells, filling them up with clean earth, and substituting for them vessels to be emptied daily, or public privies to be provided as suggested above ; all other privy arrangements to be improved in the same way, and everything removed daily.

(2) Removing all wells from the polluted ground near cesspits, and digging new wells as far as possible from them, on the principles already stated. Old wells to be filled up.

(3) Removing cattle from house compounds, improving the suface, and maintaining strict cleanliness.

(4) Raising all beds and sleeping places above the ground level.

(5) Where people resort to the fields for natural purposes, provision should be made for immediately covering the deposits with fresh earth, and certain limits should be distinctly marked by posts, within which no inhabitant should be permitted to obey the calls of nature.

8. Wherever the municipality has been able to provide pure water, brought from a distance, it would be better to close all house wells, or to discourage their use. In this way the house problem would be simplified.

9. The next most important class of sanitary improvements are those required for the surface of the town outside the houses, and made for their object surface cleanliness, surface drainage, filling up and levelling all hollows and water holes not needed for supplying water for domestic purposes, or for bathing or for watering animals, and removing animals and unwholesome trades beyond the outskirts of the population.

10. It will be seen that every one of these objects can be attained without outlay of capital. All that is required is labour and a suitable direction of it.

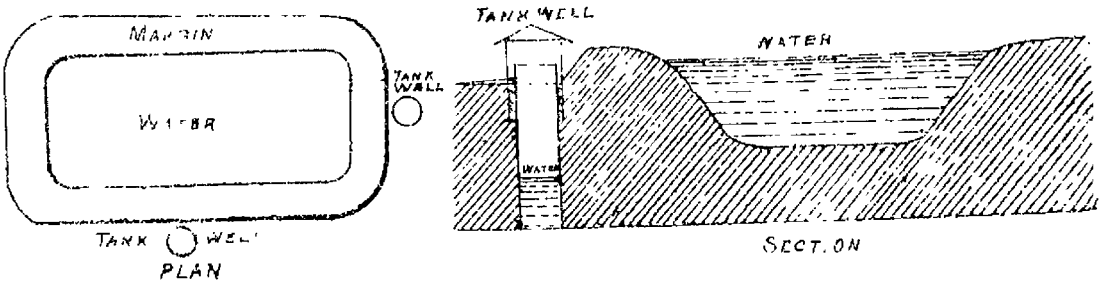
For instance, many municipal towns suffer in health from the presence in or near them of broken ground, holes with water in them, a larger number of tanks than is required for purposes of water-supply, using the same tank for drinking, bathing, washing, and watering animals.

Where such disease causes are present, the following rules should be applied:

(1) All holes or inequalities should be filled up and levelled.

(2) No tank used for supplying domestic water should ever be used for bathing, or for watering animals. The number of tanks required for all the purposes of the town should be carefully decided, and then all others should be filled up, and the land, which is often of considerable value, should be turned to use.

(3) The margins of all tanks should be carefully formed and paved, or covered with grass. Suitable places should be provided for drawing water, not directly from the tank, which should be considered as only the water reservoir, but connected with it, and made of masonry, as shown in the following sketch:



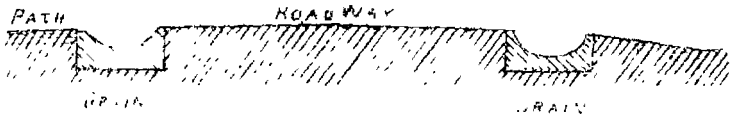
Wells sunk in clean ground at convenient places, and protected as already described, would supply tank water naturally filtered, and probably there would be no objection to draw the water by iron buckets, chain and windlass in a mixed community.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (Generally—dated 18th December 1883.

The municipality should take steps for the protection of all tanks and public wells. This is indeed one of their most important duties. There should always be a separate water-supply provided for low-caste people.

(4) At present the only kind of drainage suitable for small towns is open surface drainage carried along lanes and streets to some convenient outlet.

All covered drains should be avoided. The surfaces of lanes and streets should be graded so as to allow rainwater to pass readily to the surface drain, and the drain should have a shallow water-tight section.



The material should be the best and cheapest to be obtained on the spot. Cut stone or concrete or asphalte might be used, or masonry or close fitting vitrified brick; but in any case it is absolutely necessary that the channel should itself be laid true, have a sufficient fall, and that all the joints should be water-tight. Open cuts in the earth are of no use, but are on the contrary to be avoided, as leading to a damp unwholesome state of the subsoil.

(5) Where lanes or roadways have a considerable fall, the strong currents produced by tropical rains are apt to injure or even to ruin, the side drains. This may be avoided by constructing the drains with steps to break the current.

Surfaces of roads and lanes must, as everywhere, be made of the hardest and cheapest material available. The essential points in small town and village road formation are that the gradients should be properly laid out to drain the road to the side gutters, and that the surface should be carefully kept in repair. Little labour would be required for this purpose in comparison with the outlay necessary for reinstating the road after it has been half ruined by rain and traffic.

Shallow saucer-sectioned surface drains can be kept clean by sweeping or by throwing water into them. With due care in cleansing with fresh water there would be no risk in allowing water used by households for washing and bathing to run into the surface drains.

The surface drains should discharge their contents into open impervious shallow surface sewers, by which the water could be conveyed to a distance from the town and used at once for irrigating land, and so be finally disposed of.

All household and town impurities are best made use of by being applied to agricultural purposes, and dung-heaps near the town should be avoided.

(6) The general health of small towns may be much improved by removing all useless jungle, by lopping the lower branches of trees so as to improve the external ventilation, and by planting trees on wet or damp ground within or near the town—a measure which dries the ground and purifies the air. Tree-planting along the public roads is also beneficial to health.

(7) Another general town improvement of much importance is the removal of all ruinous dwellings and levelling their sites.

(8) Any foul unwholesome surfaces of ground within the town can readily be improved by covering the area with a few inches of clean earth, which is by far the best disinfectant to use.

11. As already stated, none of the measures proposed above need be expensive. All the materials and labor required are on the spot, and most of the work could be done by the inhabitants of houses themselves; and they ought to be required either to do what is necessary or to pay for the doing of it, on the well understood principle that an unhealthy house is not only dangerous to its own inmates, but to its neighbours, and to the town generally.

If municipalities in small towns see that these measures are carried out to the greatest practicable extent with the means at their disposal, they may confidently expect improved health and less liability to epidemic diseases.

12. But when cholera or fever, or any other epidemic, attacks a town, another duty is placed on the municipal authorities. In a small population there ought to be no difficulty in discovering the houses in which there have been cases of cholera, fever, small-pox, &c.; and whenever it comes to the knowledge of the municipal authorities that the inmates of particular houses have been attacked, immediate inquiry should be made into the sanitary state of the house. It is not safe during epidemics to stir up filth or foul ground, but there is one measure which can be taken with perfect safety—namely, to remove all animals out of the house or compound, and to cover all filth or foul ground, including cesspits, with clean earth and in every such case the house well should be closed and water brought from outside the town. These two measures, namely, providing good water, and covering all foul matter with earth, can always be adopted with safety and advantage during epidemics: and if any other measure be considered neceesary, it ought to be the removal of the people away from the affected house. When the disease has abated, the municipal authorities should proceed to improve the house and compound on the principles already mentioned.

II.

Sanitary Improvements of Villages.

13. There are four agencies by means of which village improvements can be carried out:

(1) The inhabitants,—who ought to be called on to keep their houses, cattle, privies, wells, and village streets free from nuisance.

(2) The village officers,—who might be entrusted with powers to see these things done.

(3) The zamindar or village proprietor,—who ought to be called on to keep his property in a proper condition, especially as regards village work not immediately belonging to houses and compounds, such as the conservancy of village tanks, and the adjustment of their numbers to the wants of the population, filling up all useless collections of water, and all hollows in the ground, levelling the surface, removing ruinous huts, and surface draining the village site, providing new wells, thinning jungle, &c., to improve the external ventilation. The zamindar should, in fact, see that all sanitary work is done which bears on the health of the village as a whole, as contradistinguished from the steps necessary to keep the house and its appurtenances in a healthy condition.

(4) The Government,—whose sanitary duty in regard to village populations lies in the direction of general drainage works where these are of proved necessity for the district, and irrigation where water for agricultural purposes is deficient.

Village sanitary problems are so various, and are so much influenced by causes outside the houses, that it may be useful to state, as in the preceding paragraphs, the different agencies to be called into action, as these have been indicated in the many reports on this subject which have been received from India.

14. The village officer, where he exists, may help to remove the most important domestic causes of ill-health which afflict the great mass of the people in India. He might take the following steps, and in some way authority might be given him for this purpose. He should see that all the village streets and lanes are kept clean and free of nuisance, that no filth or foul matter is thrown on the surface, and that no one is permitted to perform the offices of nature in any village street, lane, or open space.

He should set apart some area of ground to leeward of the houses to which all filth is to be taken. He should inform the inhabitants of it, and see that the ground is used for the purpose. He should set apart one or more open spaces to which people may resort for natural purposes, and every person should be required to cover up his own filth, or where it can be done a sweeper should be paid for the purpose, as has been done at Bijnor. The field used for this object should be cropped after it has been sufficiently manured, and another field set apart. All village filth and sweepings are useful for manure, and should be spread over land at the proper season.

Care should be taken that the ground set apart for these purposes is not near any well or tank, or watersource from which drinking water is drawn.

The village officer might possibly be charged with oversight of the compounds and houses, or at all events he might call the attention of the people to the necessity for rigid cleanliness, and for removing cattle outside the compounds; some provisions might be made for stalling them outside the village but, at any rate, it would be far safer to have a cattle-pen on some open ground within the village than to keep cattle inside the houses. In such a case the village officer might enforce rigid cleanliness and removal of all manure outside the village. It would be advisable to follow the course which has been adopted in some parts of India—namely, to put up boundary marks round villages within which no deposit of any kind of filth should be allowed.

It follows from what has been said that the most urgent sanitary improvement for Indian villages is one that need cost nothing. It is simply cleanliness in which every inhabitant should lend his assistance; but in the case of those who would prefer to pay rather than to do their own cleansing, the expense would be very small.

15. Next in importance to cleanliness is the protection of water sources; and a very simple rule of judging of the need of this can be applied by any one. It is this, to examine the ground about the well or tank. If the ground is foul and filth-sodden, no well dug in it can yield good water, and no tank is safe unless the margins are raised to prevent surface filth being washed into the tank during the rains. If in any house or compound there is a cesspit, together with a well or tank, both should be filled up. It may be taken for granted that the cesspit has so fouled the subsoil, that no good water can be got from it; and besides this, no cesspit or dung-heap should be permitted within the boundary of any house. Unless the inhabitants resort to the fields, the whole house filth should be removed daily in a portable vessel.

The safest course to take where wells are the source of the water-supply, and where they have been dug in fouled ground, is to provide a new well; probably one for the whole village might be sufficient. It should be dug in clean ground, away from all nuisance. The subsoil water should be cut off from it by casing the well outside with concrete to a depth of 8 or 10 feet from the ground level. The tube of the well should be raised two feet above the ground, and the surface should be sloped away from the well, and paved or covered with concrete, so as to carry away all waste water. Probably the best way of drawing water would be by a windlass and iron bucket and chain, and some kind of cover should be used to keep leaves out of the well As already stated, there should be wells for low-caste people.

Where village water is obtained from tanks, it is most important to keep one tank solely for drinking and cooking water. It should be specially protected, and never used either for bathing, washing clothes, or watering animals. Tank water can always be filtered by digging a well at a short distance from the tank.

Improved water-supply for an entire village ought to be undertaken by the proprietor, because the people have not the means of doing the work.

16. It may be repeated here that the general measures required for the whole village, and which in default of other means should be done for the people by the zamindar, are village water-supply as described, surface improvements, such as levelling ground, filling up useless tanks and holes, surface drainage, removing jungle, removing ruinous huts, &c.

These improvements would cost very little in comparison to the gain in health among the people.

17. The measures in which Government might aid have been already stated, but it may be further suggested that the Vaccination Officers might be charged by Government with the duty of instructing both village officers and people in these matters. Civil Surgeons could also render efficient aid; and all should be done under the general supervision of the Sanitary Commissioner of the Government, who would also decide the precise nature of the responsibilities resting on the village proprietors.

A. P. MACDONNELL,
Secretary to the Government of India.

19th March, 1879.

From the Senior Surgeon and Sanitary Commissioner with the Mysore Government,
To the Chief Secretary to the Dewan of Mysore, No. 1036, dated Bangalore, 7th August 1888.

I have the honor to forward for favor of submission to the Dewan for consideration excerpts from the Pioneer of the 28th and 30th of last month and copies of *letters of the Sanitary Commissioner for Madras Nos. 170 and 320 of the 28th February and 26th March 1887 respectively, and order thereon by the Government of Madras, dated 30th May 1887, No. 966 L, on the question of general sanitation in India.

*To be obligingly returned when done with.

2. There can be no doubt that action of the nature indicated is as much needed in Mysore as elsewhere in India, and if Government take up the question seriously, I see no reason why measures should not be devised by which immense good would be done to the people with the funds and agencies at the disposal of Government.

3. No doubt the employment of a special expert as Consulting Sanitary Engineer would be advantageous, but at first, from the nature of things, and probably for a very considerable time, the questions which would engage attention in most of the small Municipal Towns, and in Towns and Villages with no Municipalities, would be of small dimensions, which the Executive Engineer, in consultation with the District Medical Officer, or Sanitary Commissioner with Government would be competent to deal with.

4. In like manner as regards funds, I have no doubt if Sanitary Boards, or executive bodies with similar functions, were established, Municipal funds would, as a rule, be more judiciously expended on sanitation, and it would be less neglected than at present; and where there are no Municipalities Local Funds would, to some extent, come to the rescue, or even where money from this source was not available, the prime considerations being improved water supply, drainage and conservancy, much good could be done by local agencies, without any direct expenditure of money.

5. A great matter would be to give the system a start, and give it state recognition, so to speak, so that recommendations deliberately and carefully made, could not, where means exist to carry them out, be ignored and set aside at the pleasure of individual Officers, as they are likely to be at the present time. If Government were not prepared to entertain the question on a large scale, a District or even a Taluk might be taken as a unit. But however that may be it must be expected that progress will at first be slow, as, in my opinion, it resolves itself very much into a question of gradual education, and whatever opposition, whether active or passive, may be at first encountered would gradually disappear as people come to know the benefits to health and wealth derivable from improved sanitation in their dwellings and surroundings.

6. Government have taken up the question of small-pox mortality in a manner which I trust will result in the introduction of a Compulsory Vaccination Act for the whole Province, and large though the mortality is from that cause it is immeasurably larger, not taking into account the general deterioration of health of the people from fevers and other causes, whether epidemic disease or other, all of which, whether imported or acquired, are aggravated by insanitary surroundings.

7. Improvement in village sanitation is a question of the greatest importance to the welfare and progress of the State and the people, and whilst I recognize the difficulties there are to contend with, because of apathy if not prejudice on the part of the people, the large area to be dealt with, and the scattered condition of towns and the villages, still I very respectfully contend that it is one which ought be grappled with and a beginning made.

From the Senior Surgeon and Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of Mysore
To the Chief Secretary to the Dewan of Mysore, No. 1462, dated Bangalore, 26th October 1888.

With reference to your Camp No. 1098 of the 12th ultimo, I have the honor to suggest that previous to framing any rules the opinions of Deputy Commissioners, Presidents of Municipalities, and the Superintending Engineer may be obtained on the Resolution of the Government of India, Home Department, on the practical application of sanitary principles to towns and villages in India printed in the Gazette of India of the 28th July last, as the whole thing is most instructive and suggestive even though my proposals referred to village sanitation only.

I understand from the Superintending Engineer that we must not expect much help from his Department in matters concerning village sanitation, and even though I regret this, yet I am inclined to think that as a rule there would not be much need for technical or professional skill in dealing with the three principal points requiring attention in village sanitation, viz., (a) improving or at all events protecting from pollution, the present water sources, and wells and tanks, (b) improving the conservancy both of houses and streets, preventing the indiscriminate fouling of the ground in and around villages, and (c) improving the drainage such as filling up pits or holes in which water or sewage is likely to accumulate and stagnate and cutting shallow drains for the purpose of conveying surface water or sewage beyond the village and away from the general water supply.

There are of course other matters which follow the above as a natural sequence, such as, the housing of cattle; storing manure in the yards or enclosures of houses; domestic privies which pollute the air and surrounding ground, with too frequently, wells dug close by within the polluted area; rank luxuriant vegetation which harbour venomous reptiles and pervent free perflation of air, dead walls which afford cover for the commission of nuisances, &c., all of which when the matter was a little studied would come quite within the ken of the Amildars and minor taluk officials.

The Deputy Inspectors of Vaccination all of whom are at present Hospital Assistants acquainted with the general principles of hygiene and who now regularly report on the water supply and general sanitary condition of such villages as they visit would be very useful agents.

Simple rules framed on these lines and translated into the vernacular for general distribution ought be productive of immense good and Amildars and others who may be entrusted with enforcing them should be made to acquaint themselves with the general principles on which they are based, as if the different points pros and cons are intelligently explained to villagers at the outset they cannot fail to see that their interests are very closely affected and I am very hopeful that they would give cordial support in the shape of labor which is all that would be required as a rule.

If the Dewan consider the suggestion to refer the matter for opinion to the officers referred to. I shall be very happy to frame the draft rules as requested.

No. 5946-55—CIR. 172, DATED 18TH DECEMBER 1888.

ORDER.—Copies of the above are forwarded to the Deputy Commissioners of Districts for an expression of their opinion and views on the subject.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General),—dated 19th December 1888.

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPERS :—

From the Officiating Under-Secretary to the Government of India, Department of Finance and Commerce, To the Director General of the Post Office of India, No. 5652, dated Simla, the 17th October 1888.

I am directed to convey the sanction of the Government of India to the proposals contained in your letter No. 1866, dated the 18th June 1888, for taking over the management and control of Postal arrangements in the Mysore State.

2. The Post Master General of Madras will decide which of the officials of the Anche establishment can be retained and which should be discharged. A list of the men to be discharged should be communicated as soon as possible to the Dewan of Mysore so as to enable the State to give three months' notice before the discharge takes effect.

3. The pensionary charges of the Anche officials retained in British service will be divided between the British and Mysore Governments according to the Rule of proportions.

4. The transfer should have effect from the beginning of the next financial year.

Letter No. 4172—481-8, dated 11th December 1888, from the Assistant to the Resident, forwarding two lists received from the Post Master General, Madras, of Anche officials who appear fit for employment in the Imperial Post Office.

No. 5915—CIR. 169, DATED BANGALORE, THE 19TH DECEMBER 1888.

ORDER THEREON.—The Government of India having sanctioned the proposals made by the Director General of the Post Office of India for taking over the management and control of Postal arrangements in the Mysore State, the Government of His Highness the Maharaja are pleased to direct that from 1st April 1889, all Postal arrangements in the Province be transferred to the Imperial Postal Department.

2. Official correspondence of the State will, from 1st April 1889, be carried within the limits of the Province, free of cost, by the Imperial Postal Department in the same way as such correspondence is now carried by the Local Anche. Official correspondence of the State will be carried beyond the limits of the Province at the official rates of postage prevailing in the Imperial Postal Department, in accordance with the arrangement specified in the correspondence printed with Dewan's Proceedings No. 2473-74—Cir. 57, dated Bangalore, 7th July 1888.

3. The accompanying lists A and B show the names of the Anche mutsaddis, postmen, village postmen and other officials whom the Post Master General, Madras, is willing to take over for service in the Imperial Postal Department.

4. There are now, in the service of the State, 227 superior officials of the class of Mutsaddis, &c., of whom 63 whose names are shown in the list A will be employed by the British Postal Department from 1st April 1889. The remaining 164 officials should be informed at once that their services will be dispensed with from the date above mentioned, on such pension or gratuity as they may be entitled to under the rules in force. After serving the 164 officials with notices as above, the Anche Bakshi will submit at once a complete list of them, showing name, age, length of service, qualifications and the probable amount of gratuity or monthly pension in the case of each individual.

5. As regards the 63 officials named in list A, they must at once be informed that their services will be transferred to the Imperial Postal Department from 1st April 1889, and that their pension will be paid to them by the Mysore and British Governments according to the rule of proportions as defined in the Civil Pension Code. Such of them as do not wish to join the British Postal Department will within a week from this day intimate their wish to the Anche Bakshi, and upon such intimation, they will be treated as thrown out of employ owing to abolition of the local Anche establishment and granted such compensation gratuity or pension as they may be entitled to.

6. The 63 officials referred to in the preceding para should, at once, be granted such leave as they may be entitled to and be sent to the British Postal Department for being trained for their new work. The employment of substitutes during their absence on such leave is sanctioned. As it would be difficult to find substitutes at once for such a large number of officials without materially crippling the work of the local Anche Department during the next three months, the British Postal Department will be requested, through the British Resident, to restrict the period of training in the case of each individual to six weeks and to receive the first batch of 31 officials on 1st January next, and the second batch of 32 on 15th February next. In anticipation of a settlement in accordance with this request, the Anche Bakshi will at once arrange to send the first batch on 1st January next.

7. As regards postmen, village postmen and peons, the 185 individuals named in list B will be transferred to the British Postal Department from 1st April 1889, and these men should at once be informed accordingly. The remaining 160 men of this class should be informed that their services will be dispensed with from the above date on such pension or gratuity as they may be entitled to. A nominal roll of these men containing information specified in para 4 above should be submitted.

8. Out of the 930 anche runners now employed, the Anche Bakshi will, after careful examination, select 585 of the youngest, most able-bodied and most active, for transfer to the British Postal Department for employment on the mail lines specified in list C, and notify to the remaining 345 men that their services will be dispensed with from 1st April 1889 on any gratuity or pension they may have earned. A full nominal list of the men to be transferred should be submitted as early as possible, for communication to the Resident. The Anche Bakshi will also submit a list (giving the information specified in para 4), of the men of this class who will be discharged from 1st April 1889.

9. To all men whose services are dispensed with, owing to the transfer of the Postal Department to the British Government, His Highness the Maharaja's Government are pleased to extend the concession granted in the case of public servants discharged in the general reductions of 1879 and 1882, namely :—

1st. all service rendered after completion of 16 years of age shall count towards pension or gratuity ; and 2ndly. to every individual's qualifying service calculated under the general rules in force and the last preceding clause, will be added, a grace of one full year's service.

10. The Anche Bakshi will communicate the above concessions to the individuals concerned.

11. The Anche Bakshi will, in communication with the Comptroller, take immediate steps to ensure the early verification of the services of the individuals to be retired under these orders, so as to ensure the payment to them of gratuities on 1st April 1889 or of pensions on 1st May 1889.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General).—dated 19th December 1888.

12. If any individuals discharged under these orders are considered fit, by physical and other qualifications, for further service in any other department of the State, an attempt will be made to find suitable employment for them; and with this object, a list of their names will be sent to the Deputy Commissioners and the Heads of the various departments. Re-employment can however be promised to none of the officials in question, but such of them as succeed in obtaining re-employment are bound by the rules of the Civil Pension Code in this behalf.

Chief Secretary.

POSTMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE,
Bangalore, dated the 8th December 1888.

H. FARRER,
Postmaster General.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General), dated 20th December 1888.

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPER :—

Report on the Operations of the Registration Department in Mysore for the year 1887—88.

No. 5945—568, DATED 20TH DECEMBER 1888.

REVIEW THEREON.—The report for 1887—88 shows a considerable increase in the number of documents registered over the number of the previous year, 22,318 against 20,717; there was however a material fall in the value of the transactions; Rs. 60,24,761 for 1887—88 against Rs. 77,41,727 for 1886—87. The Inspector General of Registration explains that this is due to "the fewer registrations in the Bangalore Registry office of documents relating to Gold Mining Companies and coffee lands situated in the Hassan and Kadur Districts." The transactions are chiefly sales and mortgages as usual, 19,645 documents out of the entire number 22,318. It is gratifying to note that optional registration is steadily increasing.

2. Of the large number of documents presented for registration, namely 22,318, as many as 20,192 were registered completely within two days: delay of more than two days in the case of the other documents has been satisfactorily explained.

3. The financial results are as usual good, Rs. 53,159—8—3 under Receipts and Rs. 26,233—6—0 under Expenditure.

4. The Inspector General of Registration does not seem to have inspected any of the District or Sub-Registry offices in the year 1887—88. This is an omission.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

To—The Inspector General of Registration.

No. 6107-10—286, DATED 21ST DECEMBER 1888.

ORDER.—Under Section 58 of the Municipal Regulations introduced into the City of Mysore by Regulation III of 1888, the Municipality of Mysore is entitled to levy fees at the rates specified in Schedule C. 2. for the registration of every place where spirituous or intoxicating liquors are sold by retail within the limits of the City. At present, the Government is credited with the proceeds of a cess levied at the rate of 2 annas per gallon of liquor sold in the City, such cess having taken the place of fees levied prior to 1st April 1887 upon retail licenses and upon sales in excess of 60 gallons a month in each shop.

2. As the existing arrangement will operate as a bar to the enforcement of Section 58 of the Municipal Regulations, the Government of His Highness the Maharaja is pleased to direct that from and after 1st April 1889 the cess of 2 annas per gallon above referred to be abolished so far as regards arrack issued for consumption in the City of Mysore, and that the Municipality be left to levy fees from retail arrack shops within the City, in accordance with Section 58 of the said Municipal Regulations.

3. The fee levied in Bangalore is Rs. 180 per annum per license. The President, Mysore, will report what fee he would propose to levy in Mysore. In addition to such fee, another fee of 4 annas per gallon of arrack sold in such shops in excess of 60 gallons a month will also be levied and credited to the Municipal revenues.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (General),—dated 31st December 1888.

READ THE FOLLOWING PAPERS :—

From the Assistant to the Resident in Mysore, To the Dewan of Mysore, No. 3502—368, dated Bangalore, 18th October 1888.

In continuation of this Office letter No. 1977—368, dated 12th June 1888, I am directed to forward a copy of Circular No. 81 Stats.—13-4, dated 11th September 1888, from the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department, and enclosures, and to request that the Agricultural Statistics of Mysore may, if the Darbar see no objection, be kindly supplied in future in the manner therein prescribed

2. The Resident will be glad to know whether it will be convenient for the Darbar to comply with the instructions of the Government of India.

From the Under-Secretary to the Government of India, To Local Governments and Administrations, Circular No. 81 State.—13-4, Simla, the 11th September 1888.

In continuation of my circular letter No. 20—13-1 (Statistics), dated 27th February 1888, I am directed to forward, for the accompanying extract from the Proceedings of the Agricultural Conference held at Delhi on the 29th March last, relating to the proposed modifications in some of the present forms of the returns of Agricultural Statistics :—

2. The forms are eight in number, viz :—

1	2	3	4
Serial No.	Present Lettering.	Proposed Lettering.	Description.
1	A	A	Area cultivated and uncultivated.
2	Nil.		Irrigation.
3	B		Crops cultivated.
4	III. D. 2		Agricultural stock.
5	III. E. 1	B	Prices of produce.
6	C	C	Surveyed and assessed area.
7	I. E. 3	D	Varieties of tenure held direct from Government.
8	I. E. 5	E	Register of transfers.

As it is desirable and convenient to have a uniform system of numbering or lettering the forms serially, the Government of India will be glad if Local Governments and Administrations can adopt in future the lettering given in column 3 of the above table in the forms furnished to this Department.

3. The forms which were discussed by the Conference are those noted in the marginal list, in which the present lettering of the forms is given. Copies of all the forms, as they will now stand if the proposed alterations are accepted, are appended for facility of reference.

Irrigation Form.
Form B—Crops cultivated.
„ III D 2—Agricultural stock.
„ C—Surveyed and assessed area.
„ I. E. 3—Varieties of tenure held direct from Government.

4. In the proposed form A have been amalgamated, as suggested by the Director of Land Records and Agriculture, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, the present forms A, B and III D 2, as well as the form for showing irrigation. The adoption of this form will probably result in more uniformity in printing the returns, and occupy a smaller number of pages than at present. Besides, it will be easier to give comparative figures in this form, as is done in the returns of Great Britain, should this be considered necessary now or hereafter.

5. As regards the acreage under crops to be exhibited in the proposed form A, I am to say that Local Governments and Administrations can, if they prefer it (as was the case before in some Provinces), enlarge the form by giving further details under each major head of "Cereals and Pulses," "Oilseeds," &c.; but if this is done the Government of India will require for incorporation in the Imperial return the separate submission of an abstract in the prescribed form. The Secretary of State is in favour of further details being given in the provincial crop returns.

6. With reference to the remarks of the Conference on mixed crops, I am to enquire how far it is possible to exhibit the area under each crop, as desired by paragraph 5* of this Department circular No. 42 (Statistics), dated 31st March 1884, marginally noted. It is requested that a reply to this question may be furnished before the end of the year.

* In the case of areas under mixed crops, which will fall under more than one column, an estimate should, if possible, be made of the proportion of the area debitable to each crop. This is not a very satisfactory solution of the question, but it appeared to the Conference the only alternative to prescribing an elaborate series of headings for mixed crops which, though suitable for provincial purposes, are out of place in an Imperial return.

7. The form B appended for showing prices of produce is that proposed in circular letter No. 67—21-9 (Statistics), dated 18th July 1888, to which several replies are still awaited.

8. With these remarks I am to say that the Government of India will be glad if can accept the proposed forms A, C and D in lieu of the present ones. Forms B and E will stand, subject to whatever alterations are made in the former with reference to my circular letter of the 16th July last.

No. 6118-25—Cir. 176, dated Bangalore, 31st December 1888.

Ordered that copies of the foregoing be forwarded to the Deputy Commissioners of Districts for information and guidance, with a request that the Returns for the year 1888—89 and thereafter may be submitted to this Office in the modified forms A, C and D in lieu of the present old forms.

R. VIJAYINDRA RAO,
Chief Secretary.

PUBLIC WORKS.

Proceedings of the Dewan to His Highness the Maharaja of Mysore, (Public Works Department),—dated 15th December 1888.

No. 6142-7—892-7, DATED BANGALORE, 15TH DECEMBER 1888.

ORDER.—In view to utilize the supply in the large river channels in Mysore, to the fullest possible extent, it has been proposed that the raiyats should be allowed to establish irrigation, by lift, along the lands on the upper side of such channels ; and as the measure will doubtless prove very beneficial to the State and to raiyats, the Government have decided to try the experiment on the marginally noted channels, subject to the following rules :—

1. Kattepur	Ashtagram Channel Division.
2. Ramanathpur
3. Ramasamudram ...
4. Tippur
5. Devaraya
6. Ramapur
7 Mandigere	Mysore Division.
8. Chikkadevarayasagar ...
9. Mahadevamantri ...
10. Sriramadevar, South ...	Hassan Division.
11. Do North ...

(1) As the lands below the channels have the prior claim to the supply, the cultivation on the upper side must not be extended so as to affect materially the irrigation at the tail of the channel. At the outset therefore, the area to be so cultivated should be restricted to 300 acres above each of the first 5 miles.

(2) The lift which will be limited at first to 6 feet above H. W. M. of channel, shall not be placed withih 30 feet of the channel edge.

(3) Such cultivation should begin not later than the 30th June ; but it should be earlier, if the early rains allow of the ground being prepared for cultivation. The rains should be taken the fullest advantage of. Whether the raiyat has used sufficient deligence in this matter, will be decided with reference to the condition of the dry cultivation on neighbouring dry fields.

(4) Land for which water is thus supplied, will be charged with a moderate water rate, and the Superintendent of Revenue Survey will be requested to report, after consultation with the Deputy Commissioners concerned, the rate he would recommend for adoption. The rate should be temporary for the first two years, when it may be possible to form a proper opinion on the success of the measure.
